

Past and Present – Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Management Introductory Workshops 2024

Information and Nomination Form

First People-State Relations group (FPSR) has developed an innovative and exciting training program for all Aboriginal Victorians with an interest or role in the State's unique and irreplaceable Aboriginal cultural heritage. There are more than 41,000 registrations of Aboriginal cultural heritage places in Victoria. Under the Aboriginal Heritage Act 2006 Registered Aboriginal Parties and other Aboriginal community organisations have a significant role in the protection and management of these important places. The workshops provide an overview of essential practical skills and knowledge for people wanting to become involved in Aboriginal cultural heritage management and build on the Aboriginal community's existing knowledge and skill base.

Participation in a three-day introductory workshop is a prerequisite for an FPSR funded place in the accredited component, the Certificate IV in Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Management.

COVID-19 PROTOCOLS

This year's workshops will not be modified to accommodate COVID-19 considerations. However, all participants need to agree to not come to the venue if they are experiencing cold or flu like symptoms. The health and safety of the Aboriginal Community are extremely important to all of us. All participants will complete a COVID-19 self-assessment, pre-Workshop induction and agree to the principals of good hand and coughing hygiene etiquette. Voluntary temperature checks and masks will be made available.

Who can nominate?

Nominations are open to all Aboriginal people interested in cultural heritage management particularly field-based officers and staff from Registered Aboriginal Parties (RAPs) and staff from other land management agencies. People involved with other Victorian Aboriginal community organisations and Traditional Owner groups dealing with Aboriginal cultural heritage management should also attend.

What does the ACHM Workshop cover?

The workshop introduces the main themes of Aboriginal cultural heritage management, highlighting industry requirements and how the current cultural heritage legislation works.

Topics covered in the workshop include:

- What is Aboriginal cultural heritage management?
- Working with the Aboriginal Heritage Act 2006 (the Act)
- Heritage words and meanings

- Working with cultural materials – introduction to stone artefact technology
- Understanding and managing Aboriginal scarred trees
- Job Safety Analysis
- Simulated field work
- recording artefact scatters
- working with low density artefact scatters
- recording scarred trees
- Working with Cultural Heritage Management Plans (CHMPs)
- A world view of heritage
- Cultural heritage significance according to the Act
- Preview of the Certificate IV course: what to expect and where to from here?

Where and when will the workshop take place?

Two workshops will take place in July and August 2024:

IAS, La Trobe University – Bundoora 16th – 18th July (Nominations close 9th July)

Century Inn, Traralgon– 13th -15th August (Nominations close 6th August)

Sponsorship

FPSR covers all workshop costs including accommodation, meals and training.

Travel is reimbursed for public transport or petrol costs upon presentation of receipts.

What if you want to continue training in Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Management?

People who complete a three-day workshop are eligible to apply for entry into the nationally accredited Certificate IV in Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Management. Funded by FPSR, this accredited training course may contribute to further university studies in the Bachelor of Archaeology, the Bachelor of Arts (majoring in Archaeology) and other related fields.

Certificate IV in Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Management

The next Certificate IV course is planned to commence in February 2025.
